11th graders from Foshay L.C. to be rewarded

To emphasize the importance of meeting deadlines, a small group of teens from Foshay Learning Center (FLC) are to reward their junior class for turning in an important graduation requirement on time.

Feb. 28, 2013 – Los Angeles, CA – Meet Deadlines, a small group consisting of 5 seniors attending FLC, is offering 11th graders pizza, candy, and of course stickers. All this just for turning in their My Road on time, My Road is high school graduation requirement at FLC and the program is to get kids to see what careers best suit their personality.

Juniors attending here have until March 19, 2013 to turn it in. Students must demonstrate evidence of completion to their high school counselor. Once this specific deadline is met, those who turned their My Road in on time will be given a ticket specifying that they are eligible to receive what Meet Deadlines has in store for them.

With this ticket they have until March 22 during the schools Nutrition and Lunch time to go claim their prize. Once the bell rings the doors will shut and students who arrive late will receive a paper wishing them better luck next time.

A senior was asked if deadlines mean more to him now than they did about a year ago. His reply, “Hell yeah, last year it’s as if I didn’t care. Now I’m top of all my stuff”. Meet Deadlines won’t change students’ lives but they’ll definitely point them in the right direction.
